

JANUSCHEK, ACTRESS, DEAD

After a Long Illness, She Dies at the Brunswick Home at Amityville, L. I., at the Age of Seventy-five.

HAD SOLD HER GEMS AS WELL AS HER COSTUMES.

Later Years of the Actress Were Spent in Comparative Poverty, but She Was Aided by the Actors' Fund.

Mrs. Franziska Januscheck, actress of wide fame, died today at the Brunswick Home in Amityville, L. I. She had been a private patient in the home for four months, a charge of the Actors' Fund.

Mrs. Januscheck was seventy-four years old. Her death was not a surprise, as she had gradually been sinking for many months. Her health had been feeble for several years and she made no fight against the advance of disease, often expressing the wish that "her sleep" would come soon.

She was a Bohemian by birth, having been born in Prague in 1830. She became prominent as an actress in her own country and in Germany before her fame reached a wider sphere.

In 1854 the actress met and married Baron Frederick J. Elliot, the man who was to give the greatest setback to her brilliant career. He served as her manager at first and brought her to America in 1867. Here she appeared in only German roles, but her success on the continent was duplicated. All went well until her husband ran away with all her funds and left her well-nigh penniless to get out of his plight as best she could. He met a well-deserved fate afterward by dying in obscurity.

In 1875, at the age of forty-four, she came to this country. She made many fortunes, but through her generosity and racial managers she lost them all. Her last appearance in this city was in the "Great Diamond Robbery" in 1890.

It was quite a come down for her to appear in this cheap melodrama and she often grieved over it. In the winter of 1890, however, she determined to make one last effort to redeem her fading laurels and to recoup her shattered fortune. She pawned all her jewelry and put all in a play called "What Dreams May Come To," with Frank Crotter as her manager. She opened in Washington, D. C., in December, and then started on a Western tour. But it was to no avail. The company became stranded, and, broken down by the shock, she with difficulty reached New York.

Until seven or eight years ago Mrs. Januscheck would return to the stage for brief seasons. In July, 1900, she left her apartment to do some shopping, and upon her return suffered her first attack of paralysis. She was taken to St. Mary's Hospital and remained there until December of that year. Then she went to live with Mrs. Ashton, at No. 141 Franklin street, Harbortown, under the care of Dr. James H. Kelley, of that place.

Her liberality in expenditures during her career had left her without resources when she fell ill and a benefactor was given for her in Wallack's Theatre, which netted $3,000. Since then the Actors' Fund has looked after her.

WENTZ'S WEALTH GOES TO FIANCÉE

Letters of Administration Were Granted in Estate of Rich Philadelphian Who Disappeared in Mountains.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—Ancillary letters of administration were granted today by the Register of Wills in the estate of Edward L. Wentz, the wealthy young Philadelphian whose mysterious death in the mountains of West Virginia has never been cleared. The estate is variously estimated at from $500,000 to $1,000,000, and the bulk of the property is left in trust for the benefit of his fiancée, Cornelia Brookmire, who lives in St. Louis.

The boy went to the free-escape to the kitchen window and then gave a cry. He had discovered a pool of blood under the sink and there was a trail of blood leading to the bedroom. The janitor heard the boy's cry and went to him quickly. He and the boy entered the bedroom, following the trail of blood, and there came upon the dead body of the mother.

When Keeler arrived at his home and saw the crowd in the hallway, he rushed to his apartments, and there came upon the bloodstained corpse of his wife. For a time his reason fled. The children were taken in by neighbors and cared for.

Mrs. Keeler was thirty-six years old and was formerly a Miss Quigley. She was connected with the New York Quigleys and with the prominent Southern family of that name.

SEEK NEPHEW OF SLAIN WOMAN

Police Send Out Alarm for Frank Furlong, Who Has Been Missing Since the Discovery of the Body of Mrs. Keeler.

ROBBERY THE MOTIVE FOR THE MURDER.

Youth Had Been Fed Frequently by His Aunt—Her Head Was Found Crushed with an Iron Bar.

Arrest for homicide Frank Furlong, nineteen years old, bricklayer, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weight 135 pounds, broad shoulders, slightly stooped, very thin face, sunken cheeks, ruddy complexion and sandy hair. When last seen he wore a shabby gray suit and light overcoat.

This is the description sent out by the police in a general alarm of the youth who is suspected of having beaten Mrs. Margaret Keeler to death to rob her of her husband's savings and of her jewelry—jewelry worth not more than $100 and prized by her because it had come down from ancestors who had known wealth and luxury.

The man wanted is a nephew of the murdered woman. He is the one whom she fed, for whom she and her husband, Joseph Keeler, cared when there was no work for him to be had. Their home was his, and what they had was his, had he only asked for it, and it was his daily custom when food was scarce and when there was no way by which he could get money to call at their home, No. 81 East One Hundred and Fifth street.

Police Fail to Find Nephew. The aunt who befriended him is dead, with her skull crushed by a bludgeon wielded by an assassin; her home is looted by the same assassin; the husband is half-crazed from grief; the two children of the Keelers are being cared for by neighbors and the nephew is missing.

Every saloon where this youth is known has been visited by the police. His companions and they are not said to be the sort his aunt would have chosen for him—have been questioned. The city has been searched from the Battery to the Bronx, but without result. The nephew is missing.

And so the charge has been made by Police Capt. Heilthy, of the East One Hundred and Fourth street station, that Frank Furlong is guilty of homicide.

From the finding of Mrs. Keeler's body yesterday afternoon it has been plain to the police and detectives working on the murder that the crime was committed by an ingrate—by some one committed by Mrs. Keeler—who was admitted to her apartments after he had come for food.

There are three apartments on each of the floors of the flat-house, and a cry, even faint, would have been heard had Mrs. Keeler been startled by the appearance of a stranger.

Waited Until Children Left. The children left for school shortly before 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The murder was committed shortly afterward, as nearly as can be reckoned. Had a stranger come to the Keeler apartments he would not have been admitted.

The discovery of the murder was made by Mrs. Keeler's young son. He came home from school at an unseasonable recess for luncheon. They knocked at the door of their home, and when the mother did not open for them they began to cry, and were taken in by Peter Mundy, the janitor of the building, who gave the children something to eat and started them off to school again. The boy and girl came home from school the second time at 3 o'clock, and again their knocks failed to bring responses from the mother.

Then they began to cry in earnest, and the neighbors came to them. It was suggested by the janitor that the boy, an athletic, strong youngster, climb up the rear fire-escape to the rooms and see if there was trouble.

Boy Finds Blood. The boy went to the free-escape to the kitchen window and then gave a cry. He had discovered a pool of blood under the sink and there was a trail of blood leading to the bedroom. The janitor heard the boy's cry and went to him quickly. He and the boy entered the bedroom, following the trail of blood, and there came upon the dead body of the mother.

When Keeler arrived at his home and saw the crowd in the hallway, he rushed to his apartments, and there came upon the bloodstained corpse of his wife. For a time his reason fled. The children were taken in by neighbors and cared for.

SAYS RICH GIRL IS NOT INSANE

Mabel Spang, Daughter of Pittsburgh Millionaire, Illegally Kept in Sanitarium, Asserts Lawyer Bebro in Court.

TEACHER PRONOUNCES CHARGES OUTRAGEOUS.

Asserts that Beautiful and Cultured Girl Is Kept Behind Bars and Not Treated Like a Civilized Person.

Sensational evidence was given today in chambers before Justice Maraan, of the Brooklyn Supreme Court, on the habeas corpus proceedings brought by Lawyer Henry Joseph Bebro to release Miss Mabel Spang from a Yonkers sanitarium. Bebro alleges that Miss Spang, a beautiful and cultured girl of nineteen years, was illegally detained insane and put away in the institution.

The Spangs are a Pittsburgh family. Charles H. Spang is a millionaire living with his wife, Rosa E., at No. 45 East Seventy-eighth street. They travel extensively in Europe. Mr. Spang recently received $300,000 in trust from his father's estate, the will of Charles Spang, sr., who died in Nice, France, settling forth with uncertain ventures.

The -ed Spang, grandfather of the girl now seeking liberation from the Yonkers sanitarium, was a member of the iron firm, Spang, Chalfont & Co. of Pittsburgh.

Private Hearing Accorded. When the case was called at 10 o'clock Lawyers Charles C. Lockwood and William T. Gilbert, representing the mother, asked for a private hearing and an adjournment. The case was put over until 2 o'clock, when the ante-room of the chambers was crowded with witnesses.

Miss Mabel Spang was in charge of a nurse, Miss Catherine Cullenane, and Dr. George Bond, who conducts the Yonkers sanitarium, where the girl has been kept in close custody since July 27 last. She has red hair, fine features and wears eyeglasses. She wore a neat fitting black dress and was very collected and calm.

Among the witnesses called by Lawyer Bebro, who himself was once falsely locked up in an asylum, was Miss Josephine Selam, a tall brunette with great black magnetic eyes.

Calic Charges Outrageous. Miss Selam is a school teacher, and was an intimate friend of Miss Spang when the latter attended Miss C. Baird's select school for young ladies at Norwalk, Conn. Her home is Scranston, Pa., and her affection for Miss Mabel Spang was the basis of the allegations upon which the girl was put into a sanitarium by her mother.

To an Evening World reporter Miss Selam said: "The charges made by Mrs. Spang against her daughter and myself are outrageous."

It was learned that Miss Selam is a graduate of Smith's College, at Northampton, Mass., and is a French linguist of note. Her brothers are wealthy residents of Scranston, Pa., and are going to see her through the present difficulty. She has taught in many of the leading female colleges of this country, and it is charged that her friendship for Mabel kindled the fire of jealousy in the heart of Mrs. Spang.

At present Miss Selam is teaching in Paterson, N. J.

Many Friends Testify. Among the witnesses subpoenaed to testify as to the good character of Miss Selam were Miss Mary Childs, principal of Smith College; Miss C. Baird, of the United School at Norwalk, Conn., and several women of Manhattan and Riverhead, L. I., with whom she lived.

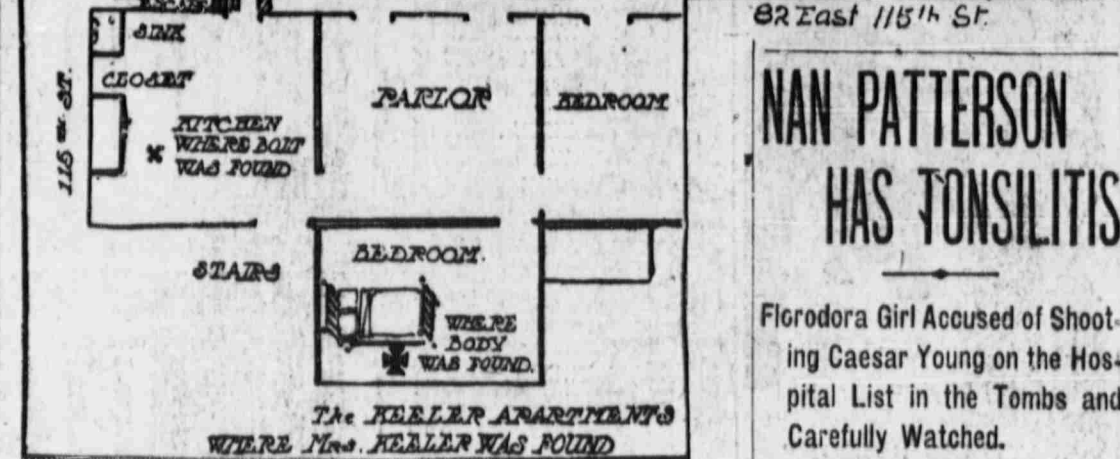

When Miss Mabel Spang left her mother's house she spent some days with her former teacher, who is alleged to have sympathized with her in family matters.

That Mrs. Spang sought to hide the fact of her daughter's incarceration was shown to the court by the following serial notice, which appeared in a New York newspaper Aug. 1, 1904:

"Mrs. C. H. Spang and Miss Mabel Spang, No. 45 East Seventy-eighth street, will sail for Europe on Saturday."

At that very time Miss Mabel Spang was an inmate of Dr. Lord's sanitarium, No. 80 North Broadway, Yonkers, N. Y., where she had been committed by her mother.

HOUSE IN WHICH MRS. KEELER WAS MURDERED. IN HARLEM AND DIAGRAM OF THE CRIME.

DIDN'T SIGN NOTE, SAYS CARNEGIE

to care whether or not there is any truth in the open charge that has been made that Mrs. Chadwick and the notorious Mrs. Devere are one and the same person. The parties to last night's conference seemed indifferent to this, and in fact the creditors are interested only in getting their money back.

That Mrs. Chadwick is at present in the city and has not returned to Cleveland is obvious from the fact that her personal attorney, Judge Albaugh, is in the city.

By the proceedings which were to have begun in Cleveland today it was hoped that the exact value of the securities which Mrs. Chadwick used as collateral for her various borrowings would be learned.

Mr. Newton and others from whom she borrowed money declare that she gave them sufficient evidence of her possession of some $5,000,000 in securities to satisfy them. This property, Mrs. Chadwick said, was tied up temporarily in the Wad's Park Bank of Cleveland, in charge of one Ira Reynolds as trustee.

In the meantime there are persistent rumors that other banking-houses in Ohio are in trouble through their dealings with Mrs. Chadwick. The Woodstock National Bank was in temporary trouble on Friday, and yesterday there was a run on the Wayne County Bank. H. C. Frick, it is said, went to the rescue of these banks with large sums of money. There is no positive evidence that Mrs. Chadwick had dealings with these institutions, but rumor has it that she held her paper.

That Mrs. Chadwick has been sorely pressed for money during the past few weeks to meet some of her rapidly accumulating obligations is proved by the statement of a New York lawyer, whose name is withheld for the present. He says Mrs. Chadwick tried to borrow $200,000 only a few weeks ago.

TRIED TO BORROW $200,000 HERE. "She was a complete stranger to me when she first came in my office," said this lawyer today, "but she introduced herself as the wife of Dr. Chadwick, of Cleveland, of whose standing I knew. She was then stopping at the Essex, at No. 572 Madison avenue. She told me she had an income of $175,000 every six months, but that she had indorsed notes for $200,000 which she had been forced to pay. In order to pay it, she said, she had borrowed money in Pittsburgh, putting up securities and jewelry as collateral. The loan was almost due, she said, and she must have the money to meet it or sacrifice the securities."

"She wanted me to stop the sale at once, and gave me $20 from a large roll she carried to ring up the Pittsburgh parties on the telephone and satisfy them she would meet the obligation. I called up, and apparently everything was all right. The man on the other end of the wire seemed to know all about the matter. He suggested that she send the balance of her jewelry as collateral and thus save the sale of her securities. This she said she would do."

"Later she tried to get me to secure a loan of $200,000 for her; then reduced it to $80,000, but as her security didn't suit me I refused to act."

CLARISSA AGNEW DIES AT IRVINGTON Once a Broadway Favorite, She Wed Wealthy Daniel Reid and Was Welcomed in Society.

Announcement was made today of the death, after a lingering illness, of Mrs. Daniel G. Reid, wife of the tipu and railroad magnate, in her beautiful villa at Irvington-on-the-Hudson. The announcement created interest and sympathy not only in society but in theatrical circles, for Mrs. Reid was Clarissa Agnew, a Broadway favorite previous to her marriage four years ago.

NAN PATTERSON HAS TONSILITIS

Flordora Girl Accused of Shooting Caesar Young on the Hospital List in the Tombs and Carefully Watched.

Nan Patterson has been placed on the hospital list in the Tombs as the result of a severe attack of tonsillitis that developed today. Dr. McGuire, the Tombs physician, ordered the young woman to keep to her bed after visiting her and requested the prison authorities to forbid everybody but her father to see her.

According to the doctor she is a nervous wreck, as the result of the strain put upon her during the ordeal of her interrupted trial. Though she held bravely her stamina could not withstand the attack of disease. Her aged parent, who was allowed to go to her cell for a few minutes, came away very much worried. He said he feared that if she did not recover her strength rapidly she might not be able to face her second trial next Monday.

Awoke with a Fever. "When she awoke this morning," said Mr. Patterson, "she had a high fever and was suffering from a sore throat. As soon as the doctor looked at her throat he declared that she had tonsillitis and that the greatest care must be taken to prevent anything more serious from developing."

"On Saturday last she caught a bad cold while waiting in the prison pen to be taken to the court-room. It did not develop until today, when it suddenly broke out in the form of tonsillitis. Faint white spots are visible in her throat, and it is all she can do to swallow even liquid food."

Dr. McGuire said that there was no occasion for serious alarm about Miss Patterson's condition, as the best of care would be taken of her and she could not take any risk that would aggravate her malady. He expects that she will be fully cured before the end of the week.

SUBMARINE IN TOW MENACED BY GALE

Plunger Twice Ran Aground at New London, but Was Hauled Off Without Damage—Hard Sound Trip.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 29.—The United States torpedo boat Lingey arrived here today with the submarine boat Plunger in tow, after a rough cruise across the Sound from New Suffolk. The boats were bound to Newport, but put in here on account of stress of weather.

They anchored to the west of this harbor last night and the torpedo-boat had to cut loose from the submarine twice to escape going ashore.

The Plunger went on the beach twice, but was hauled off without damage. The two men on the Plunger were so much overcome by exposure and exhaustion that they required the attention of a physician when they arrived here.

KRUGER'S BODY AT CAPE TOWN CAPE TOWN, Nov. 29.—The Dutch steamer Ratafuer, having on board the body of Paul Kruger, formerly President of the Transvaal Republic, arrived here today almost unnoticed. The body will lie in state here and will have for its last resting place a special train, which will stop at most of the railroad stations on the way there.

GAMBLERS EAGER TO AID FELTON

Telegrams from All Parts of West Pour Into Tombs Offering Cash to Man Indicted for Murder of Guy Roche.

"WON'T NEED IT; WILL GET OUT OF SCRAPE," HE WIRES.

Prisoner's Friends in This City Already Have Pledged $20,000 for His Defense—Victim's Sister Under Doctor's Care.

Telegrams from all parts of the West, some of them sent from mining camps so far remote from civilization that they have been delayed many hours, came pouring into the Tombs last night and today to "Big Frank" Felton, the gambler indicted by the Grand Jury today for the murder of Guy Roche. He will appear to-morrow morning in General Sessions to plead.

All of these telegrams are from gamblers in the West who are anxious to subscribe to the fund for Felton's defense.

In each instance Felton has replied to his Western friends, thanking them and assuring them that their assistance was not necessary and that he was sure of getting out of the scrape.

Confident of Acquittal. The confidence that Big Frank has that he will be cleared of the charge is shown in one of his replies to a man of the name of Hunter in Elwood, Ind., which is a sample of the wording that he sent to the others. It reads as follows: "Thanks, old man. Won't need it. Will get out of scrape O. K."

These telegrams come from faro dealers, roulette dealers, three-card monte men and proprietors of "green cloth" houses.

If Big Frank needs any money his friends in this city are prepared to subscribe $20,000, as that sum has already been pledged.

Big Frank is the "star boarder" in the Tombs. He lives on the best that can be provided, and the attendants are only too willing to do all in their power to make his stay comfortable.

Gamblers to Aid Felton. "If Felton hadn't shot Guy Roche some one else would have been forced to do it," said one of the pool-room men, "and it's up to us now to help 'Big Frank' out of this trouble."

"We had decided on drastic measures to take the case out of the Coroner's hands," said Mr. Krusel yesterday, "should he have taken 'Bob' Nelson's ball for Felton. We have evidence enough to indict Felton for murder in the first degree."

Felton's victim was buried in Greenwood Cemetery yesterday afternoon. There were about thirty persons present, including Tenderloin "bad men" and four heavily-armed women.

Miss Roche was prostrated and under the care of a physician as soon as the body was buried.

The Trolley Club pool-room, managed by "Big" Felton, was closed yesterday, with two policemen stationed near, and with a heavy force of police in the hood of Broadway and Thirty-sixth street have been closed down since the shooting.

KICK AND SCREAM

Baby's Awful Suffering from Eczema. Could Not Hold Her—She Tore Her Face and Arms.

Cuticura Saved Her Life, So Mother Says.

"When my little girl was six months old she had eczema. We had used cold creams and all kinds of remedies, but nothing did her any good. In fact, she kept getting worse. I used to wrap her hands up, and when I would dress her I had to put her on the table, for I could not hold her. She would kick and scream, and when she could she would tear her face and arms almost to pieces. I used four boxes of Cuticura Ointment, two cakes of Cuticura Soap, and gave her the Cuticura Resolvent, and she was cured and I see no traces of the humor left. I can truthfully say that they have saved her life, and any one suffering as she did, I should advise them to give Cuticura a fair trial."

MRS. G. A. CONRAD, Lisbon, N. H., Feb. 7, 1898.

Five years later, viz., Feb. 23, 1903, "It is with pleasure that I can inform you that the cure has been permanent, as it is now six years since she was cured, and there has been no return of the disease since, and I have advised a lot of friends to use the Cuticura Remedies to all diseases of the skin."

Instant relief and refreshing sleep for skin-tormented babies, and rest for tired, fretted mothers, in warm baths, with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointings with Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure and purifier of emollients, to be followed by severe cases by the doses of Cuticura Resolvent. This is the purest, sweetest, most speedy, permanent and economical treatment for torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, bleeding, scaly, crusted and pimply skin and scalp humors, eczemas, rashes and irritations.
